

Meeker Memorial Hospital

Meeker Memorial Hospital turned to Nuvera for Internet and ethernet, looking to save time, money and frustration.

Meeker Memorial Hospital's Challenge

Meeker Memorial Hospital is a 35-bed facility in Litchfield on the forefront of medical technology, service and care. As such, they needed Internet and ethernet service that could keep up with their demands. Top performance from Internet infrastructure is critical when patients' lives are at stake. Equally important is the ability for any staff member to access reliable Internet from any computer station across their large, multi-level campus.

Why They Chose Nuvera

Like any complex, multi-department company, Meeker Memorial Hospital was challenged by the need to provide reliable Internet connection across multiple departments and for dozens of employees. Added to that is the complicated nature of a medical facility. Finally, the need for an economical solution in an industry where leaders strive to keep costs low for patients was a major factor.

Meeker Memorial Hospital turned to Nuvera for Internet and ethernet services. Ethernet service connects multiple computers on a local area network (LAN) or connects multiple office locations across a wide area network. The data is transferred via a private line, rather than traversing the Internet. This adds a layer of security to protect confidential data and provides the quickest transfer of information possible. Both critically necessary when it comes to medical data.

Meeker Memorial Hospital also knew that they could count on Nuvera's local support to help ease any frustration over the implementation and utilization of their complex system.

How The Product Has Helped and Their Experience With Nuvera

Trying to incorporate Internet in such a large, multi-faceted facility, Meeker Memorial Hospital was pleased to find that Nuvera was able to bring service to locations that they were previously unable to reach, for example, their satellite location in Dassel.

"Nuvera was willing to work with us to bring service to locations that did not have it before. The price was good and overall services were great."

- Troy Bruning, IT Manager

Additionally, they knew that when any problems arose, Nuvera would quickly send out local, knowledgeable tech support to minimize downtime and glitches.

A fortunate benefit was that the price was economical and the service was great.
